2 – Purpose of the Educational Programme
Purpose of the educational programme	To train specialists in finance, banking, insurance and the stock exchange who possess contemporary theoretical knowledge and practical skills, the capacity for self-directed learning and self-development, and can solve applied tasks in the field of financial protection, identify financial risks, assess threats, and develop and implement effective solutions for ensuring the financial stability of business entities and public sector institutions in the context of decentralisation, digitalisation, and European integration transformations. Learning objectives: to train specialists capable of solving complex specialised tasks and applied problems characterised by complexity and a degree of uncertainty, both in professional activities in the field of finance, banking, insurance and stock exchange, and in the learning process.
3 – Characteristics of the Educational Programme
Subject area (field of knowledge, speciality, specialisation (if applicable))	Field of knowledge: D Business, Administration and Law Specialty: D2 Finance, Banking, Insurance and Stock Exchange Qualification: Bachelor of Finance, Banking, Insurance and Stock Exchange Mandatory components of the EP account for 180 ECTS credits (75%, 5,400 hours); elective courses account for 60 ECTS credits (25%, 1,800 hours). The mandatory components include: the general preparation cycle (50 credits, 21%); the professional preparation cycle (118 credits, 49%); and the components of practical training and qualification work preparation (12 credits, 5%). Theoretical content of the subject area: based on concepts, categories, theories and conceptions defining the trends and patterns of the functioning and development of finance, banking, insurance and the stock market to satisfy the information requirements of users of financial information. Object of study: the theoretical, methodological, organisational and practical foundations of the functioning and development of finance, banking, insurance and the stock exchange. Methods, methodologies and technologies: general scientific and specialised methods and procedures for organising finance, banking, insurance and stock exchange. Tools and equipment: contemporary information systems and technologies, standard and specialised industry-specific software, technologies and methodological tools in finance, banking, insurance and stock exchange.

Programme orientation	The EP is oriented towards students acquiring professional knowledge, skills, abilities, and other competencies, including language, for successful professional activity. It is based on well-established propositions and the results of contemporary research in finance, banking, insurance and stock exchange. It envisages the acquisition of practical skills and mastery of contemporary approaches to ensuring the financial protection of economic entities, and is oriented towards relevant educational programmes within which further professional careers and/or study are possible.
Main focus of the educational programme and specialisations	The emphasis is placed on the integrated formation and development of professional competencies in the field of financial protection of financial relations entities — in particular the state, business and households — as well as skills necessary for the analysis, modelling and forecasting of financial processes, the assessment of financial risks and threats, and the adoption and implementation of effective professional decisions. The Programme provides for the possibility of employability and further education and career advancement at the level of master's programmes of a professional or research orientation. Keywords: finance, money and credit, corporate finance, budget system, tax system, banking system, stock market, insurance, financial sector and capital markets, financial security of business entities, state financial security.
Distinctive features of the programme	The EP is built on the results of cutting-edge research in the field of ensuring the financial security of corporate and public finance; provides in-depth study of the disciplines constituting its subject area; and aims to train specialists capable of comprehensively solving applied tasks of ensuring the financial protection of financial relations entities. A distinctive feature of the EP is the provision of bilingual teaching for some educational components. The Programme also provides an opportunity to gain advanced knowledge with an emphasis on developing a theoretical foundation and practical skills in diagnosing threats and dangers to financial systems, using innovative simulation modelling technologies in a virtual environment and e-learning, as well as involving practitioner-specialists in the educational process. The EP provides for the possibility of international exchange and academic mobility within Ukraine and abroad. The competitive advantages of the Programme lie in providing students with the necessary professional competencies for research and practical work, which are in demand in any sphere of activity (business, public sector entities, public service, non-profit organisations, etc.) where analytical competencies must be applied and complex professional decisions must be made under conditions of uncertainty in the financial system.

8 – Resources for Programme Implementation

Academic staff

The core teaching staff of the Educational Programme consists of academic staff of the departments of the Ferenc Rakoczi II Transcarpathian Hungarian University. The lecturers teaching within the Programme are active and recognised scholars who publish in national and international scientific journals and possess relevant professional competence and experience in teaching, research, and pedagogical activity. Academic staff undergo professional development at least once every five years. The practice-oriented nature of the EP envisages the broad involvement of practitioner-specialists in the field of the EP, as well as the engagement of highly competent experts, including representatives of professional unions and associations and foreign specialists, thereby reinforcing the synergetic connection between theoretical and practical training. Teaching of educational components in Hungarian or English is provided by lecturers who command the relevant language at a level no lower than B2, as confirmed by a relevant document. The Programme Guarantor and the academic staff responsible for implementing the EP meet the requirements set out in the Licensing Conditions for Educational Activity.

Material and technical support	The available premises meet the regulated floor space standards. The educational process under the EP is fully supported by teaching rooms and laboratories equipped with multimedia equipment. Specialised computer classrooms with the necessary software and unlimited open internet access are available for practical and laboratory work, information search and results processing. Recreational and wellness infrastructure is available (2 canteens, a sports ground, a sports hall, a fitness room, a medical office, etc.).
Information and educational-methodological support	The official website of the University contains information on educational programmes, academic, research and educational activities, structural units, admission rules, contacts, etc. The information and educational-methodological support for EP “Financial Protection” in training specialists in speciality D2 Finance, Banking, Insurance and Stock Exchange meets the licensing requirements, has up-to-date content, is based on contemporary information and communication technologies, and is posted on the official University website. The language of instruction is indicated in the syllabuses of the relevant educational components. Students have unlimited internet access (Wi-Fi covers the entire University); a research library, a repository, and reading rooms; academic schedules; and educational-methodological support for educational components. The University uses the “IRIS” learning management system.
9 – Academic Mobility
National credit mobility	Academic mobility is carried out on a general basis within Ukraine based on bilateral agreements between the Ferenc Rakoczi II Transcarpathian Hungarian University and partner institutions.
International credit mobility	International credit mobility is carried out based on bilateral agreements between the Ferenc Rakoczi II Transcarpathian Hungarian University and higher education institutions of partner countries, in particular through cooperation agreements with universities in Poland, Slovakia, Hungary, Romania, Turkey, etc. Academic staff of the University participating in the training of specialists under the EP have the opportunity to enhance their qualifications through participation in Erasmus+ programmes. Students also benefit from the “Mákovéc” international mobility programme, operating since 2016, which extends to the countries of the Carpathian Basin – Hungary, Ukraine, Romania, Slovakia and Serbia.

Education of international students	The programme is not currently offered to international students.
